Faculty Spotlight - 3M National Teaching Fellow Dr. Darren Cork

This year’s 3M National Teaching Fellow is Dr. Darren Cork, who has been recognized for his innovative and effective teaching methods.

Online Peer Assessment in MOOCs: Students Learning from Students

Gerger Kipper, the instructor for Introduction to Systematic Program Design, discussed the role of peer assessment in an online course called "Open Ocean Ocean Cycles (OOCs)." Gerger will be available through May 2013, as part of the "Teaching Research in Learning" program.

UPCOMING EVENTS

March 2013

Connect: Looking Back and Looking Forward

Join us for a look back at the learning and teaching trends from 2012 and a look forward to what is to come in 2013. We will reflect on the progress made in our online and face-to-face classrooms and preview some of the plans coming up in the New Year.

Learning About the Social Complexity Behind Aboriginal Student Data

This session will feature an Aboriginal researcher who will discuss the Social Complexity Model and how it can be applied to understand Aboriginal student data.

2013 CTLT Institute

Join us for the upcoming 2013 Institute, May 20-21. The CTLT Institute offers you an opportunity to learn about the latest research and trends in teaching and learning, and to network with your colleagues through workshops and panel discussions.

New Teaching and Learning Resources

Find out more about the new teaching and learning resources that have been added to the CTLT website, including new videos and workshops.

Other Professional Development Opportunities

Learn about some of the professional development opportunities available for teaching and learning community members.